

Introductory statement from the Author

The purpose for this book came to fruition in a rather round-about way. My original purpose was to gather material for a definitive TV mini-series about the life and times of Abraham Lincoln, his influence on not only his own nation, but on the wider world in general. From 1993 to 2005, I worked in the film industry in Southern Alberta in Western Canada, working mostly on historical period films. In this capacity I was able to discuss history with a variety of people; actors, directors, producers and crew. The idea of a mini-series about the life of Lincoln came up.

After having acquired the sole publishing rights to a cache of documentation from the last surviving holder of the Chiniquy family archive, who had hidden it from public disclosure for some 120 years due to the fear of certain death threats received by that family if the contents were ever made public - and after much persuasion on my part to promise to give an honest historical account in my research in order to gain the trust of the proper handling of this file, I found myself so taken aback by the material, being filled with questions the material led me into, that I had to alter my focus to reveal the entire historical context of the life of Lincoln in juxtaposition to U.S history, from the years leading up to his birth in 1809 - to his murder in 1865, to show that the Civil War was engineered in great part by the globalist forces of Europe, the 'holy alliance', guided in large part by the Papacy and the Jesuit order and to then show the repercussions in the aftermath of his removal by the forces of globalism and how they still operate to this day. The goal to have this work adapted into a definitive and educational dramatic TV mini-series still stands.

Because my research led directly to into the realm of religion, I had no choice but to examine this specific angle of the history of the United States. In fact, religion is the linch-pin, the keystone of history. Without understanding this aspect, you can't make sense of the news. There is no historical grounding, no defining focus.

When I began to show various film producers what I had been made providentially privy to, the general consensus was to put it all into a book. I am not a professional writer by any means. This book is a 'first ever' effort, it has not been professionally edited and has been an ongoing project of refinement through a couple of pre-market versions to help the reader put the daily news into a very real historical context - that shows the formation of the U.S., as we know it, was not an accident of history; that the malicious-ness and malignancy of the globalist powers of Europe would not sit by and see their 1,500 year old stranglehold on global power compromised; that the rule of the Almighty was still very much in the minds of certain selected men who were raised up to confront the powers of humanity that sought to establish a society under the rule of a man who places himself in the position of God on earth.

Lincoln was made privy to a material understanding of this malignant power during a court trial in 1856. He understood the historical fact that the United States was the only instance in history of a land founded and governed by a written code rather than through the will of a single man since the Hebrew's were given a written moral and legal code from Sinai. He understood that there were forces that were hell-bent on destroying the global influence of this 'new concept' of government. When he became president, he defeated these combined powers of what Samuel Morse, Thomas Jefferson, Samuel Adams, John Adams, John Quincy Adams, Benjamin Franklin, President Monroe and George Washington knew as the "Holy Alliance".

This "Holy Alliance" of European powers still exists in the great-great grandchildren of these same families. They now operate under the name, "Globalist" and "illuminati". They include in their company those corrupted and bought off politicians, journalists, bankers, industrial leaders and military officers who are in league with them. They wish to reverse the force and effect of the U.S. Constitution. They see this foundational legal stance of 1776 as a threat to their own dreams of Empire, specifically of resurrecting the bloody empire of Charlemagne, a feudalist/globalist union of church, finance, business and state, named a 'beast' by God; the "Holy Roman Empire". In short, they still desire the total destruction of the Anglo-American peoples, the offspring and inheritors of the promise to Jacob of national glory, given to Ephraim and Manasseh respectively, as any kind of world power.

This book is intended to put focus and clarity into the daily news; to give the lifetime of Lincoln a very real, vivid and con-temporary historical significance, to show that the establishment of the United States was allowed by God for a reason; to show that the war between good and evil is, in reality, a war over the concept of government, to show why the Anglo-American peoples are about to undergo a moral and extreme societal correction not seen since the internal strife and eventual captivity of Ancient Israel -that came about beginning with their justifying the sacrifice and murder of their children.

Nearly every historian believes that George Washington and Abraham Lincoln were America's two greatest presidents. These men faced monumental crises—survival-of-the-nation problems. And if you look at their inspiring examples, you can see how they met and conquered those crises. In his book Our Sacred Honor, William J. Bennett writes: "What made this country different from all others was a prevalent belief that God played a direct and active hand in founding a people. Like the Jerusalem of old, America's 'New Jerusalem' was to become God's promised land to the oppressed—an example to all humankind."

Early Americans believed it was their destiny to set an example for the world!

Religion and Morality

In his inaugural address on April 30, 1789, George Washington said, “[T]he foundations of our national policy will be laid in the pure and immutable principles of private morality” In other words, private morality is not a peripheral issue; it is foundational.

In his farewell address in 1796, Washington said, “Of all the dispositions and habits which lead to political prosperity, religion and morality are indispensable supports.” He knew that without religion and morality, America was doomed. Washington continued, “In vain would that man claim the tribute of patriotism who should labor to subvert these great pillars of human happiness, these firmest props of the duties of men and citizens.”

Historians believe that America wouldn’t even exist without the leadership of George Washington. God was with him, the first great American warrior.

President Washington believed, in essence, that character is everything. “We have now a national character to establish,” he said. In political campaigns today, character isn’t mentioned at all. Most Americans seem to think it has no bearing on a man’s fitness to govern. Private morality and public duty are considered separate issues. Washington would have been appalled by that kind of thinking!

America’s second president, John Adams, followed Washington’s lead. He said that the foundation of national morality “must be laid in private families.” He also said, “Our Constitution was made only for a moral and a religious people”.

“Early American society was one built around the biblical sanctity of marriage and family,” writes Angelo Codevilla in The Character of Nations. “Since the founders had no doubt that popular government is possible only among virtuous people, they revered marriage as few people before or since.” Those early Americans were right: Strong marriages and families are crucial to national success! If you understand what the Bible teaches about marriage, you can see why their reverence for this institution was so important. Scripture shows that God designed marriage and family for many vital reasons. Marriage is a God-plane relationship—a type of the saints’ marriage to Jesus Christ at His Second Coming!

French historian Alexis de Tocqueville wrote, “Religion and morality were indispensable to the maintenance of the American republic. While the constitutional law of liberty allowed Americans complete freedom to do as they pleased, religion prevented them from doing that which is immoral and unjust.”

Tocqueville surmised, “Liberty could not be governed apart from religious faith, lest there be anarchy.” America’s founders knew that the Constitution allows humans tremendous freedoms, so there must be some kind of restraint to prevent lawlessness. That restraint is religion and morality.

Today, those restraints have been largely cast aside in American society! If the founders were correct—that these restraints were “indispensable” to our national survival—then this has grave implications for America’s future! The abysmal state of America’s character, its religion and morality, is putting the nation’s survival in grave danger!

Ancient Israel’s Poor Example

Early Americans considered themselves “new Israel” and looked to the example of biblical Israel. Anciently those Israelites were delivered from slavery in Egypt. At Mount Sinai, God delivered to them a moral code—the Ten Commandments, and a civil law, which they agreed to obey. However, they then rebelled and, as punishment, they were forced to wander in the wilderness for 40 years. When all the rebellious adults died, God used Joshua to lead the next generation into the Promised Land.

After Joshua died, Israel ran into real trouble, entering a period of unparalleled lawlessness and rebellion. You can read about this in the biblical book of Judges, which is the bloodiest book in the Bible! The general moral condition of the nation is summarized in this verse: “In those days there was no king in Israel: every man did that which was right in his own eyes” (Judges 21:25). When Israel lost its strong leader and cast aside character, it led to anarchy and, eventually, captivity! The book of Judges is part of the former prophets, which are prophecy mainly for today.

Is there any better description for what is happening in America today than everyone doing what is “right in his own eyes”? Immorality is rife within the American populace. And we have the government we deserve. Core institutions of American society can no longer be trusted because of a lack of strong religion and private morality—and institutional morality. Unsurprisingly, these institutions are held in contempt today. Congress has about a 17 percent approval rating. The Federal Bureau of Investigation and the Justice Department have betrayed the American people by trying to overthrow the fairly elected president. There is a war going on within the very highest levels of government! This is a curse on our nation!

Tocqueville wrote, “Any free society founded on liberty, yet without a sacred moral code to govern the actions of individuals, cannot stand.” Look at the embarrassing spectacle in America today, and you have to say that it proves Tocqueville right!

A House Divided

Abraham Lincoln dealt with a nation that was ripped in two by civil war! He knew firsthand just how dangerous division within a nation can be. Surely Americans can recognize just how divided we have become. Should we not listen to what one of our greatest-ever presidents said on this subject?

“In my opinion, [national division] will not cease until a crisis shall have been reached and passed,” he said in 1858. Why must we suffer through a crisis to learn these lessons? Lincoln continued, quoting from the Bible, “A house divided against itself can-not stand.”

Attitudes among Americans today are similar to those of Americans before the Civil War! We are a house divided! And the division is going to have some terrifying consequences.

Here are the words Lincoln quoted—and they come from Jesus Christ: “And if a kingdom be divided against itself, that kingdom cannot stand. And if a house be divided against itself, that house cannot stand” (Mark 3:24-25).

America is on the brink of destruction! Do people really not recognize the danger? People are fighting each other over political differences, racial differences, ideological differences, and they don't even seem interested in coming to agreement—they just want to destroy each other! And in so many cases, they are telling and believing lies so rank and abominable you couldn't even impose them on a child ordinarily!

On March 30, 1863, Lincoln issued a proclamation designating a day of prayer and fasting. “We have been the recipients of the choicest bounties of heaven,” he wrote. He was right! We enjoy what the Bible calls national “birthright blessings” from God! “We have grown in numbers, wealth and power as no other nation has ever grown,” he continued. “But we have forgotten God.”

Would a president today ever stand up and admit that we have forgotten God? The scorn and ridicule he would suffer for doing so would be beyond imagination!

“[W]e have vainly imagined, in the deceitfulness of our hearts, that all these blessings were produced by some superior wisdom and virtue of our own,” Lincoln continued. “It behooves us, then, to humble ourselves before the offended power, to confess our national sins, and to pray for clemency and forgiveness.”

Lincoln's national day of prayer and fasting healed the nation. This is the truth of America's history.

In a previous proclamation, on Aug. 12, 1861, Lincoln urged Americans to “humble ourselves before Him and to pray for His mercy—to pray that we may be spared further punishment, though most justly deserved.” Who in America, Britain or the Jewish state in the Middle East could issue strong correction like this today and actually be heard?

As Lincoln left Illinois for the White House, he spoke to those gathered for his departure: “Unless the great God who assisted [George Washington] shall be with and aid me, I must fail. But if [He] shall guide and support me, I shall not fail, I shall succeed. Let us all pray that the God of our fathers may not forsake us now.” In other words, the only way to succeed is to follow Washington’s example and look to God!

Will America take this route today? Will we follow George Washington and Abraham Lincoln and go to God to heal our nation? Will we confess our sins?

This is America’s own history—the greatest history you can imagine if you really understand it. Think on these examples, and you can see why these two presidents were so great. There was a reason, and it goes far beyond mere human ingenuity!

Lincoln did all he could to unify the nation. He called for all Americans to humbly seek God. He believed the words of Christ: “And Jesus knew their thoughts, and said unto them, Every kingdom divided against itself is brought to desolation; and every city or house divided against itself shall not stand” (Matthew 12:25).

Notice that: Every house—every family! That means private morality! A family must be united if it is to stand. You cannot be divided and have a beautiful family. A nation cannot remain strong if it is consumed by infighting!

The way America is weakening itself and consuming itself through discord is direct proof of the problems that result when the pillars of religion and morality are removed. We must have strong religion and morality on a grand scale to succeed collectively.

God will still look after you and protect you individually if you will obey Him. Establish that private morality and religion in your own life! The scriptures make it plain and show it gets right down to the family! That is where you must begin. Strong, moral families are the backbone of your entire nation! We must look to God and humble ourselves before Him. That is really at the heart of the magnificent examples that President Washington and President Lincoln set for us, and that is how we can solve all our problems!

These great men actually gave a warning that the American people should heed today. President Washington and President Lincoln showed us how to solve our nation’s major problems. If we followed their examples, we could do the same today. That may seem astounding, but it is the inspiring truth of history!

Really, this applies to all the Western world and anybody who would apply these lessons. Even if our nations do not follow these examples, God says He will save us individually if we do so.

America's earliest settlers believed that America was the new Israel. They didn't know that this belief was literally true. And just as ancient Israel became polluted with the pagan religions that surrounded them, going so far as to incorporate these beliefs into their own lives and causing God to eventually use the warmonger-ing Assyrians to punish them, the modern descendants of these same people have followed the same path. Prophecy shows that the descendants of those ancient Assyrians – the German nation, will be used by God one final time to punish those who God calls, "my people".

I, personally, do not belong to any particular religious denomination, however, I firmly believe biblical truth and I am apolitical. I view the Bible primarily as a history book with a central theme of establishing righteous government on the earth. It is my view that Britain and America are identified in the Bible as Israel, and that the Jews are called, Judah. I place my trust in the government God will soon establish on this planet. I do not believe that it is human destiny to 'go to heaven', but rather, to be physically brought back to life from a state of death in order to perfect our character, here on earth, as citizens of Divine global government under the rule of Jesus. Isa. 9:7, Ezek. 37.

Even though I come down hard on the Roman Church, this is not to be confused with any kind of what would be termed 'bigotry', as Samuel Morse pointed out and whom I quote on this particular assertion. Morse focused on the political aspects of Romanism, but the Papacy and the Jesuits particularly, conflated this into a religious argument; and, like Lincoln and so many others, I cannot help but be struck by or escape the cyclical realities of history, the duality and certainty of Hebrew prophecy and the understanding of Mankind's purpose of establishing and living by a universal code of righteous law on the earth; a government by, of and under God.

Another American Civil War is being engineered by the European enemies of righteousness and their lawless allies. This time, unless there is a national repentance, America will be destroyed and the elimination of America will usher in the period called, 'the times of the gentiles.' Ezek. 23
